

NON-PARTISANS GET HOLD IN WISCONSIN

On the 20th and 21st of September, the Wisconsin League, a new organization, was organized in Madison. A brilliant young man, who had been in the Milwaukee headquarters of Victor L. Berger's Socialist organization, and made the State leader of the Wisconsin League. He was the capable W. C. Zimmach, State Senator and young lawyer, the product of a family of lawyers.

Berger a Power in League.

By this time it must be realized that to treat with or of the Non-Partisan League in Wisconsin without reckoning with Senator La Follette and Victor Berger is a mistake. Both of these men are composed of followers of both. And both of these astute leaders of men and women devoted much time and money to making themselves component parts of the league and the league a constituent part of them.

However, this organization and vastly relieved, the La Follette-Non-Partisan League labor vote prepared to defeat Senator Lenroot and nominate every representative who voted for the Esch-Cummins law. The outlook might have been described truthfully as rosy. But there had been so much excitement and the Non-Partisan League's endorsement of Senator La Follette. The Rev. Mr. McHenry came out against the Eighteenth Amendment, not as he took care to explain, but he hated liquor and that he loved beer. He came out against all prohibitions that would interfere with personal liberty. He preached a free press, free assembly, free speech and personal rights of the laborer. And it is not surprising to state that the Mayor of Oshkosh has a manner and fluency while on the stump calculated to fetch a cheer to one's parched lips.

In vain did Senator La Follette and the Non-Partisan League leaders beg him to desist, to abandon the race, to retire from the field and let Thompson and Lenroot fight it out. With Lenroot, Thompson, he went to the polls on primary day—September 7—and carried 46,952 votes. Lenroot amassed 149,296. Thompson gathered in 149,441.

Beck's Victory Gave Comfort.

However, there was large satisfaction to be found in the returns from the Seventh Congressional district. Joseph D. Beck, one time Labor Commissioner in the State, a La Follette man and Non-Partisan League adherent, defeated Mr. Esch by 3,709 votes. And of the ninety Republicans nominated for the Legislature, forty-five of them were put over by the La Follette-Non-Partisan League combine at the expense of the defeat of regulars. Furthermore, the La Follette-Non-Partisan League fusion nominated John D. Blaine for Governor, George F. Conning for Lieutenant-Governor and Elmer S. Hall for Secretary of State.

In brief, it was a La Follette-Non-Partisan League sweep, in so far as the executive end of the ticket was concerned. Only one regular survived—William J. Morgan. He received the nomination for Attorney-General. And it does seem as though this young man Morgan is destined to go far in politics here, although it is a great deal like classifying a rookie pitcher by his work in the Southern training camps to predict the future of a new politician by his work in his first campaign.

Non-Partisan League Denounced.

There was an earnest desire amongst a few to arrive at compromises and make for harmony. And there were those regulars who courageously announced their intention of fighting it out no matter what happened. So young Mr. Morgan, being quite careless about his personal political future and liking a fight, called the regulars around him. They drew up a platform and into this platform Mr. Morgan inserted the following plank:

"We denounce the leadership of the non-Partisan League, the T. W. W., the Communist party and all other agencies seeking to undermine the principles of democracy and advocating a programme of State socialism, Bolshevism or anarchy. We denounce the attempt of non-residents of Wisconsin through the leadership of the non-Partisan League to control the Republican party in Wisconsin."

And the platform was adopted—55 to 45. It pledged the Republican party of Wisconsin to the support of Harding and Coolidge and to the entire Republican ticket. It was regular through and through, although adapted to the local issues at stake. The La Follette-Non-Partisan League men were so out-generalled that their representation on the resolutions committee did not even get a minority report.

Now for It. The fight here is a 99 per cent local affair.

Long practice in hybrid voting in this State that has La Follette, the Non-Partisan League, and the regular Republicans, the regular Republicans and the somewhat negligible Democrats to deal with, has taught the Wisconsin voters how to cut tickets. It is not essential, at this particular period, to tour the entire State for personal opinions of the various classes of voters. Just at present Milwaukee is overflowing with conventions of farmers, labor men, fraternal organizations and so on. Start an argument on a street corner and you are deluged with opinions.

Make It a Local Fight.

There will be about 500,000 votes cast for Presidential nominees in this State in November. Alvin B. Peterson, regular Republican, who was elected chairman of the State central committee in the same charge that put the regular Republican platform over, says Wisconsin is going to give Senator Harding and Gov. Coolidge a 200,000 majority. That may be an exaggeration or a policy exaggeration or an error of optimism. But it's about as certain as an increase in your rent that the Republican national ticket will receive a tremendous plurality. The Non-Partisan League are going about ignoring the Presidential race. When heeded they shrug their shoulders and say that it makes little difference, but "as long as we are Republicans we may as well follow the national tide."

The farmers say that they are going to vote for Harding and Coolidge and then cut their tickets against the regulars in the State fight. The labor vote is divided, with the division in Cox's favor. However, Wisconsin's labor vote is somewhat like New Hampshire's—nothing approximating a balance of power.

SENATOR WADSWORTH INDORSED BY DEPEW

Praises His Record and Urges His Re-election.

Chauncey M. Depew's endorsement of James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Republican candidate for re-election to the United States Senate, was made public yesterday.

Senator Wadsworth has been one of the leaders in the fight against radicals ever since he has been in the Senate. Several times during the war he criticized President Wilson for yielding to the demands of radical labor leaders, and declared open warfare against Samuel Gompers and others who often visited the White House. In his statement Senator Wadsworth praised the qualifications of the Republican nominee for Governor in Montana, Senator Joseph L. Dixon, and declared he would make the State a good chief executive.

MYERS, DEMOCRAT, REPUDIATES PARTY

Montana Senator Asserts Non-Partisan League Style Organization.

Special to THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Henry L. Myers, Democratic Senator from Montana, issued a statement to-night to his constituents, in which he repudiated the Democratic State and Congress tickets in Montana and declared that he would vote the Republican State ticket in Montana from top to bottom, with one exception. He will support the Democratic nominee for Attorney-General.

Senator Myers' decision to abandon the Democratic organization in Montana is based largely upon the fact that the State organization has been captured by the Non-Partisan League.

"Upon returning from Europe," the Senator said, "I found that a band of political pirates, Socialists and in some cases Bolshevists, have succeeded in capturing the Democratic party of Montana. The leader of this band appears to be one A. C. Townley, not a resident of Montana, who has been under indictment for disloyalty during the war. He is a Non-Partisan League man and his affiliated forces of radicalism have succeeded in securing the Democratic nominations on the State ticket, with one exception, for their adherents."

"This is the time for all decent, respectable people of Montana to lay aside all factional and partisan considerations and to unite to save the State from the peril of socialism, high taxation, misgovernment and ruin that menaces the State."

Senator Myers has been one of the leaders in the fight against radicals ever since he has been in the Senate. Several times during the war he criticized President Wilson for yielding to the demands of radical labor leaders, and declared open warfare against Samuel Gompers and others who often visited the White House. In his statement Senator Myers praised the qualifications of the Republican nominee for Governor in Montana, Senator Joseph L. Dixon, and declared he would make the State a good chief executive.

day in the form of the following letter addressed to Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey:

"The Republican party is fortunate in its candidates. This is especially true in its selection of James W. Wadsworth, Jr., for Senator. I have known Mr. Wadsworth from boyhood and watched his career with great interest. He was for several terms a member of the lower house in the New York Legislature, and so highly regarded by his associates that they elected him Speaker. There is no better school for training for Federal service than the New York Assembly, and it requires tact, judgment, wisdom and ability to be its leader.

"On entering the United States Senate Mr. Wadsworth was at once recognized as a valuable Senator. He has grown in power and influence with his years of service and has become one of the acknowledged leaders of that body. With his admirable equipment and demonstrated ability New York will honor herself and do a valuable service to the country by again electing James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Senator."
